

Plan and act out a short play with your Six showing how you would keep yourself safe.

You and your friend are coming out of school. You have invited your friend for tea and your Mum has asked you both to wait on the corner until she picks you up. She is a little late and whilst you are waiting a neighbour of yours comes up to you and tells you that your Mum has had to take your dog to the vet. He says that Mum has asked him to take you home to his house and care for you until she is back from the vets. What happens next (remembering you are showing others how to keep SAFE!)

Plan and act out a short play with your Six showing how you would keep yourself safe. Here is the start of your story:-

You are playing in your front garden with two of your friends who have come to play. You have become really bored as you've played every game you can think of. One of your friends decides it would be really funny to throw stones across the road as cars come by to see what would happen to the stones if they are driven over. What happens next... (remembering you are showing others how to keep SAFE!)

Plan and act out a short play with your Six showing how you would keep yourself safe. Here is the start of your story:-

You are at a sleepover with some friends. The girl whose house it is has a computer in her bedroom and together you all go online to chat with friends. You get into a internet conversation with a young boy - he tells you he looks like Duncan from 'Blue' and has just passed his driving test. He asks you all your names and says he'll send you some tickets to his next concert. Some of you think its really exciting and giggle furiously. Then, he asks you all where you go to school and what you look like...
